

Template for Chicago Style Bibliography

Template

Sample Entry:

Author's Last Name, First Name. "Title of the Source." Title of the Book or Journal, Publisher, Publication Year.

Summary:

In this section, provide a concise summary of the source's content, including its main arguments, research methods, and findings.

Evaluation:

Evaluate the source in terms of its credibility, authority, and objectivity. Consider the author's qualifications, the publication venue, and any potential biases.

Relevance:

Explain how the source is relevant to your research or topic. Discuss its strengths and weaknesses in relation to your research goals.

Example

Sample Entry:

Smith, John A. "The Impact of Climate Change on Biodiversity." Environmental Studies Journal, Environmental Research Institute, 2019.

Summary:

Smith's article discusses the significant impact of climate change on global biodiversity. The author examines current research and data on the subject, highlighting the various threats posed to ecosystems, species, and conservation efforts. The article also provides insights into potential mitigation strategies.

Evaluation:

Smith, a recognized expert in the field, presents a well-researched and thorough analysis of the subject. The Environmental Research Institute is a reputable organization, lending credibility to the source. The article appears to be objective in its approach.

Relevance:

This source is essential for understanding the ongoing challenges related to climate change and biodiversity loss. It is a valuable resource for scholars and policymakers concerned with environmental issues. However, it would benefit from more recent data and a more critical examination of potential solutions.